

Monza Sport. Tough, responsive and streetwise.

First impression will probably be Monza Sport's unique appearance: a sloping front end, on-the-square twin headlights, wrap around taillights, body-color door handle inserts, and deluxe European-look finned wheel covers.

Inside, the good feeling continues, thanks to the great-looking Custom Interior with sporty vinyl or cloth-and-vinyl upholstery; brushed metal accents on steering wheel and instrument panel; handy map pockets, and more. Plus easy-sitting front bucket seats, lush cut-pile carpeting and 4-Speed manual transmission with available automatic transmission.

Monza Sport features a remarkable front-end panel of resilient urethane that resists minor bumps, front disc brakes, double-panel roof, flush-and-dry rocker panel and more.

Monza. The right combination of sportiness and economy.

Maybe it's time to get away from so-so driving, to feel a fresh surge of excitement behind the wheel. Then do it with the 1978 Monza, a car for today's kind of driving needs.

There's a lively, contemporary mood about Monza that comes from clean, very appealing styling with new grid-patterned grille set in the squared-off front end, sophisticated black touches along doors and window frames, high-backed front bucket seats, vinyl or cloth-and-vinyl upholstery and new two-spoke steering wheel.

Innovative engineering.

Responsible in large part for Monza's efficiency is an insistence on self-improvement. Just because an engineering idea was good last year doesn't mean it can't be improved on this year. Like a new fuel efficient 4-cylinder engine, standard. This new 151 Cu. In. engine gives you more of the smooth, quiet and nicely responsive performance you've come to expect from Monza.

When you first see the new Chevrolet Monza, it strikes you as a car that's fun to look at, live with and drive. And it is.
